Colts weren't even fluttering.

Salve started out with a slow but sure delivery that boded very ill for the Petersburgers, but he didn't keep the delivery up. He slipped back, is the third inning, after striking out

WHERE THEY WENT TO-DAY.

Petersburg at Richmond.
Lynchburg at Norfolk.
Danville at Roanoke.

The sad, sweet song of the hookworm floated over the Broad Street Park yesterday afternoon during the performance of the Colts and nine young men from Petersburg, and the sleeping sickness wreaked havoc with some spectators and players. Even the young Napier was discovered at one time, and, indeed, there was nobody to wake him up. Finally, Petersburg dragged out two little runs, when it seemed that six should have been present, and the game was ended on account of darkness.

The Petersburgers came back for blood and started viciously, but after a few flutters the hurts received on Thursday were salved—where is that?

In the first Petersburg came back for blood and got it. Burke failed to take a long fly into camp, which put Bowen where he could do harm, and the Petersburgers followed up subsequent hits. In the sixth Putnam hit another hit and scored on a double-bagger by Kirkpatrick.

The Colts never did do anything that evening, and it was a pity that the possibility of a tie in six of the innings it was three up and down, and the Petersburg reporters course and get what was coming to them. And that was a plenty; for the

That There Is Trouble on New York Team.

Detroit, July 29.—Hal Chase is again on the outs with the management of the New York Highlanders. At any rate, reports to that effect are circulated by the Tigers.

Hal has not been in the game for some time, and it was reported that he had a severe cold. Few athletes get severe colds during the hot playing season, and if they do, usually are able enough to land one game after another. Hal has been unusually generally good out to the park in the morning, put on some woollen underwear and a heavy sweater or two, and work out an hour or so. Colds do not like this kind of treatment.

Hamilton leading.

of the cold was evidently a new variety, for Hal has not shown up for several days. Some probing brought to light the fact that Chase is sulking. It was not so many years ago that Chase did the same thing. He told them he was through. Not alone that he packed his belongings and returned to his home in the West, but also joined an outlaw baseball organization. It was some trouble to return Hal to the good graces of theational commission, but they got him back safe and sound and reinstated him.

Not Given Credit.

Things went along fairly well last year, and Hal was made captain of great player, but he has a wonderful baseball mind. With part of the power to conduct the club in his hands and sole ruler on the field, it was Chase who made the Highlanders what they are to-day and set them at the head of the American league.

But it is not Chase who is publicly rebuffed by the showing of the New York club; it is Stallings who is handed the praise for the work of the Broadway team.

Big Jim for Farrell.

Since Chase does the work and Stallings gets the credit, no wonder that the young man rebels. He has practically been promised the management of the club for next year, and he probably wants it now.

Owner Fails to Buy the Highlanders.

A tough job on hand. Stallings's contract does not expire until next Campeon, Well Played, Wins Handicap at Six Furlongs.

Empire City, N. Y., July 29.—In a very close and exciting finish, Campeon, well played, won the handicap, six furlongs, to best to-day. He was driven out to beat Nimbus, with Chapultepec, Rose Queen, the favorite, was caught in a jam, and Shilling at once pulled up. The stewards called him into the stand to explain his action.

Summaries:

Five furlongs.—Three-year-olds, $400 added, one mile and two furlongs.—Big Stick (3 to 5), first; Acumen (3 to 1), second; Wenna (7 to 1), third.

Wilmington Week at Bat.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Wilmington, N. C., July 29.—Wilmington's batting was characterized by extreme weakness at the bat, and the second game of the series went to Fayetteville 2 to 0. Moyer and "Rube" Howard pitched well, but the Sailors could not hit when hit was needed. (1) Orth, the former big leaguer, played second base for the locals, but did not hit anything sensational.

Quinton Defeats Roxbury.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Roxbury, Va., July 29.—The Quinton ball team defeated Roxbury this afternoon 5 to 3. Batteries: Roxbury, Tunstall and Hubbard; Quinton, Watkins and Johnson.

Goldboro enabled the Red Birds to put out Goldsboro and score three runs besides. The attendance was only 40, sore disappointment to the new management.
